TO DEVELOP THE DAILY GROUND

Prospects for Early Railroad Construction into The Old Hat District Causes Immediate Movement.

After spending several weeks here placing the stock of the Daily Arizona Copper Co. on the market, president W. H. Daily will leave tomorrow for his home in Tucson. He will spend a short time there with his family and then leave for Apache camp, in the Old Hat district, where the properties are located, and commence development work.

While in this city he interested over 75 people as stockholders in the company and late last week when the announcement was made that manager H. J. Simmons, of the E. P. & S. W. had made purchases of lumber in San Diego for the purpose of building a railroad through this district, Mr. Daily decided that he would not stay here any longer but go to the property and develop it so as to be ready to make shipments when the railroad is built to the district.

The Copper Queen Mining Co. owns ranch property about the Daily-Arizona and have done considerable development work. The district is pronounced to be a very rich one, and old timers who are familiar say that it will be a second Bisbee camp in time to come.

If so, you need the 1913 Mining Edition of The Bisbee Daily Review.

If you have friends interested, or whom you desire to interest in Arizona Mining, you need copies of the 1913 Mining Edition of the Bisbee Daily Review to send them

The 1913 Mining Edition

Deals comprehensively and conservatively with the mining industry in Arizona, with particular attention to the Copper producers. It will be a valuable addition to every Arizona library and to the library of every person interested in mining, wherever he may be.

It is the only Mining publication ever issued in Arizona containing accounts of all its great producing and dividend paying properties and entering into intimate relation with their histories.

IT CARRIES A LARGER presentation of accurate facts and figures concerning Arizona mines than previously enclosed under a single cover in any publication, newspaper, state or national.

IT IS THE BIGGEST BOOST, in its accurate presentation of facts, records of dividends paid, records of production, present and past, value of properties as found on the tax rolls, etc., that has ever been made available for Arizona.

There is also a section given to Sonora mining which covers the industry in that rich mineral division more thoroughly than any previous publication.

Cochise County Mineral and Agricultural

Resources are gone into in detail. Its cities and towns are told of in a careful manner and its agricultural lands and water resources described in a painstaking, accurate manner.

Copies of the 1913 Mining Edition of The Review

May be obtained from all news stands, agents, and from The Review office, Price 25 cents.

The edition is limited. Those desiring copies of this very valuable publication should place their orders at once. Copies are Going Rapidly.
